Our New Year's Wish List

Happy 2012 everyone! May the new year bring health, happiness, and good fortune to you, your bunnies, and those nearest and dearest to you.

We wish every homeless bunny a loving forever home, but we realize that wish is unlikely to be granted. In the meantime, we'll do our best to care for as many homeless rabbits as we can.

To help us help more bunnies, we need your help! Our foster homes are always in need of supplies and we'd be grateful for any assistance. See page 2 for the Buckeye HRS volunteer closest to you.

Film Review: The Christmas Bunny

By Kristi Cole

The Christmas Bunny is a story about a lonely foster child, Julia, who comes to stay with a new family over the holidays and finds a lost and injured rabbit in the woods. The bunny is nursed back to health by an eccentric woman, known as “The Bunny Lady,” played by Florence Henderson. She runs a rabbit rescue in a barn behind her Michigan farmhouse.

There is a running thread through the movie of The Velveteen Rabbit and how love makes you real. Julia begins to feel real as she provides love to the bunny, an adorable spotted lop whom she named Rumble, and as she receives love from her new foster family. Julia relates to Rumble and he slowly draws her out of her shyness.

Before Rumble becomes part of the family after his injury heals, the “Bunny Lady” makes sure the family knows how to properly care for a rabbit. Julia must spend time at the rescue caring for the rabbits there before she takes on the responsibility of having a pet of her own.

Spotlight on Shorty!

By Keith Zimmerman

Please say hello to Shorty! He is a handsome young fellow whom someone used as a breeding experiment. It looks like they wanted a Dutch Lionhead, and what they got is a black and white bun with a Dutch face and a gorgeous, long, wispy mane that gives him a super-unique look. Shorty's a good boy who LOVES to sit on laps and be petted and groomed. He's quite friendly and curious, but doesn't fight with anybun else when he's exploring. His litterbox habits are excellent and he doesn't seem too intent on destroying things! Shorty is young, neutered, and very much looking to give his love to someone who doesn't mind him sitting on their lap for hours at a time! Give us a call if you think you'd like to meet our little boy – bhrs-keith@ohare.org, 419-355-8433.

Film Review: The Christmas Bunny Cont'd

The movie provides lots of excellent educational material about rabbit care, including diet, exercise, spaying/neutering, litterboxes, bunny-proofing, and yes, poops. The plight of unwanted and abandoned rabbits is verbally addressed and seen visually in the number of rabbits the rescue is caring for. The main thing I did not agree with was how they picked up the rabbits – by the scruff of the neck. It was wonderful, however, to see all the different kinds of rabbits at the rescue.

All in all, I thought it was a worthwhile movie, showing how both people and animals can get a fresh start in a new home.

The Christmas Bunny is an independent film produced by Honey Creek Pictures and written and directed by Tom Seidman. It is currently available on DVD. At the International Film Festival, The Christmas Bunny won in two categories. The Critter Barn in Zeeland, MI – a non-profit rescue and education organization – provided the animals for the film. For more information, visit www.thechristmasbunny.com.

"I found a domestic bunny running loose." Now what?

By Sue Zimmerman

Many of the bunnies we have fostered over the years have been strays lucky enough for a kind human to come to their rescue. We also get a number of calls from people who find a stray domestic rabbit wandering loose and aren't quite sure what they can do to help.

If you find a domestic bunny running loose, the first thing that you should think about is getting the rabbit to safety. He more than likely will not survive without intervention. Just like a human, he is going to need food, water and shelter. Try to capture or coax the rabbit to a place where you can catch him or at least block him in. Some domestic buns are friendly enough to come right up to you and allow you to pick them up. Others may be more timid or want nothing to do with you. Remember that the rabbit is already stressed and scared and he may not understand that you are there to help. A phone call or email to an HRS representative is also a good idea; volunteers will provide tips and suggestions for getting this rabbit into "protective custody".

If you are not able to catch the rabbit on your own, you may want to try a live trap. These traps are humane, will not hurt the animal, and are available at most hardware stores. Place some food in the live trap to lure the bunny in. HRS recommends a slice of banana or some shredded carrots. Be sure to cover up the trap with a blanket, towel, or tarp. This not only offers bunny a place to hide but will help reduce his stress level when captured. Be sure to check the trap at regular intervals, about every four hours. Keep in mind that it may take more than one day to successfully catch the stray. It is possible that you may not be able to catch him at all. Don't get discouraged; take comfort in knowing that at least you tried to help.

I once found a domestic rabbit hopping along the middle of the road on my way to work. I pulled over and coaxed him over to the side of the road. I nearly got him to hop into the back seat of my car, but he ended up running away into someone's back yard.

I felt terrible that I wasn't able to catch him. There was nothing else that I could do. In the end I felt a little better knowing that I got him away from the road. I may have not been able to rescue the rabbit but I was able to move him to a safer place. Ever since that day, I now carry a collapsible pet taxi in my car just in case this happens again.

Once you have the rabbit in custody you may want to check with neighbors in the area to see if the rabbit belongs to them or if they know where s/he came from. If you are unable to find the owner, you have a few choices. You can keep the bunny for yourself, try to find a good home for him, or take him to a local shelter. Be sure to contact an HRS representative for more information on your options. Our foster homes are usually always full, but it's a good idea to check with us in case we have an open spot or know of someone who can help. We may not always be able to take the rabbit, but we will work with you to the best of our ability.

In the past, Keith and I have offered another option. We will supply the rescuer with housing, food, and all supplies. In return, they agree to keep and care for the rabbit in their home until we have an available foster spot. We offer this option only if we know that we may have a spot opening up within a few weeks.

In closing, if you happen to see a domestic pet rabbit on the loose, remember to get him to safety first; catch him if you can and call a local HRS representative for assistance. (For more information on domestic stray rabbits visit www.rabbit.org)

Bunny Cookies

By Rebecca Nagley

Hop into springtime with these easy-to-make rabbit-shaped cookies!

Preparation Time: 40 minutes

Bake Time: 30-45 minutes

Total Time: 70-85 minutes

Ingredients:

- 3 1/3 c. all-purpose flour
- 1 c. sugar
- 1 T. vanilla sugar (or 1 tsp. extract)
- 1/4 tsp. double-acting baking powder
- 1/4 tsp. salt
- 2 whole eggs
- 14 T. butter
- Rabbit cutouts
- raisins, cranberries or nut pieces to decorate the eyes
- Optional: grated nuts

(depending on preference), powdered sugar, or icing; cookie gift wrap supplies ($3-4 at craft stores)

Preparation:

Mix the flour, sugar, vanilla sugar, salt, and baking powder in a bowl. Add butter in chunks and the eggs. Mix by either rubbing the ingredients with your hands, or use a mixer on low speed. Mix until the dough is smooth.

Creating the Cookies:

Roll out the cookie dough to 1/4 inch thick. Cut out shapes using rabbit-shaped cookie cutters (best to stock up on those before Easter). Decorate cutouts with nuts, cranberries, or raisins for eyes.

Place cutouts on lightly greased or nonstick cookie sheets. Bake at 350°F until lightly golden, for about 30-45 minutes depending on oven.

Cool completely on sheets for about 5 minutes, then transfer to cooling racks. Sprinkle some powdered sugar, frosting, or grated nuts over the cookies for a polished presentation. After the cookies have completely cooled, wrap as a gift or serve on a pretty holiday platter. Enjoy!

Farewell to Fievel

I cherished every moment I had with you. Although it wasn't a lengthy period of time, it was quality. I remember when you first came to us, you were afraid to leave your potty. After time, you realized that we loved you and just wanted to make you as happy as possible. Your health declined extraordinarily fast and ending your life was very hard for me. I know it was the right thing to end your suffering. We miss you and think of you often. I hope you are doing your silly head shakes across the bridge. Love you!
